

Compassionate body scan – laying down

Recommended for grades:

K4 – 1st grade

Practice description:

The body scan is a way of naturally quieting our mind and training it to pay attention. It also cultivates a stronger connection to our bodies. Some people find it useful to turn off their mind at bedtime so they can fall asleep more easily.

Transcript:

Welcome to the Compassionate Body Scan while laying down exercise.

This body scan is a way of naturally quieting your mind and training it to pay attention. It also gives you a stronger connection to your body.

Begin by laying down like a pencil on the floor, making sure your head and back are comfortable and in line.

- Pause for 2 seconds

When you are ready, allow your hands to rest palms up on the sides of your body.

- Pause for 2 seconds

Allow your feet to be about a shoulder width apart and let your toes flop to the sides.

- Pause for 2 seconds

If it feels comfortable, allow your eyes to slowly close or look at the images on the screen.

- Pause for 2 seconds

Make sure you feel comfortable, and alert.

In this practice, you will use your attention to scan, or sense, your body, without using your eyes. You may always listen to the sounds or follow your breath.

- Pause for 2 seconds

When you're ready, gather your attention like a spotlight, and direct it down to your feet. Use your attention to sense what your feet are feeling.

- Pause for 2 seconds

Can you feel your feet? Are your feet warm or cold? Tingly?

Can you feel your heels against the floor?

- Pause for 5 seconds

Imagine giving your feet a little smile of recognition for what they do...

- Pause for 2 seconds

As you breathe out, move your attention from your feet to your legs. Can you sense the feeling of your clothes against your knees? Or the floor against your legs?

- Pause for 7 seconds

Perhaps give your legs a moment of thanks for all that they do to move you from place to place.

- Pause for 7 seconds

When you are ready, gently move your attention from your legs to your torso. Stay here for a few moments and feel the sensations in your stomach... your chest... and back. Remember to breathe.

- Pause for 7 seconds

Consider silently thanking your beautiful heart for beating all day, every day, or thank your back for being so strong.

- Pause for 5 seconds

When you are ready, move your attention from your torso and gather it like a spotlight, directing it to your arms and hands. Notice the sensations in both. Are they warm or cold? Do they feel tingly? Allow each sensation to be just as it is, not changing anything.

- Pause for 10 seconds

Imagine giving your hands a little smile of recognition for all that they do each day.

- Pause for 5 seconds

When you breathe out, move your attention from your arms and hands and when you are ready, bring it to your shoulders and neck. Notice any sensations in this area.

- Pause for 7 seconds

If there is any discomfort, send kindness to that area by putting your hand over it, as a sign that you care. If there are no, or very few sensations, notice that.

- Pause for 7 seconds

When you breathe out, move your attention from your neck and shoulders to your jaw. Can you wiggle your jaw gently from side to side to help it soften?

- Pause for 7 seconds

And bring your attention to your eyes... and forehead.

- Pause for 2 seconds

Try tightening your eyes... and then allowing them to soften. Can you feel the difference?

- Pause for 7 seconds

Can you sense your ears? Or the top of your head?

- Pause for 7 seconds

Take some slow, deep breaths as you sense your whole body lying on the floor.

- Pause for 7 seconds

What a wonderful body!

- Pause for 5 seconds

Before you open your eyes, notice how being in your mindful body feels.

- Pause for 3 seconds

When you are ready, open your eyes and bring your attention back to the room around you.
