Recommended for grades:

K4 - 8th grade

Practice description:

A mindful position is a way of sitting which sends a message to your brain that you are paying attention in an alert, yet relaxed way. It can be used to naturally calm your mind and body.

Transcript:

Welcome to the Mindful position exercise.

Have you noticed that you sit differently when you are interested in something compared to when you are bored?

The way you are sitting signals to your brain how to pay attention.

Sitting in a mindful position with your body quiet and still tells your mind to be alert, yet relaxed.

- Pause for 2 seconds

When you are ready, begin by placing both feet on the floor.

Allow your back to be long and strong.

Let your hands rest in your lap.

Try softening your eyes and turn your gaze down towards your knees, or the images on the screen. If you feel comfortable, you may choose to close your eyes.

- Pause for 5 seconds

Take some slow, nourishing breaths as you sense your whole body sitting on the chair. Allow yourself to get more comfortable if you can.

If you'd like, place a hand over your heart or your belly as a reminder to your mind that you are bringing a kind and gentle awareness to yourself.

- Pause for 15 seconds

Remember, sitting in a mindful position, with your body quiet and still, signals you mind that you are paying attention in a particular way.

- Pause for 5 seconds

Before you open your eyes, thank about what you noticed in your mindful position.

When you are ready, bring your focus and attention back to the room around you.
